Part I – The Originals

I. Commerce in the Graeco-Roman period

In fact there is a multiplicity of merchantile capitals which then develops its own accounts and banking notions which then spread across the world as trading networks which then are annexed by the oligarchs and tyrranists towards the establishment of a police rule and even a estate formation with slavery.

In the modern capitalist world there is a world of commerce which is the same matrix of banking, merchant capitalism and even unequal exchange between Europe and America and the rest of the world with the new introduction of processes and company firm and clientele relations in a world of activities which then produces the syntactical development of World Bank and IMF even EU flows of finance which is the merchant's new banking notion.

II. Computers and their financial flows compared to Graeco-Roman Law and Accounting Books checked and counted bundles of money flows and this then is trade flows and networks of commodities – modelling Arrighi in the modern capitalist world

In fact there are three historical periods of capitalism – the Genoese and Dutch cycle of merchant and commercial trade which then is changed to promissaries and banking which guides its cycle which becomes the colonial British cycle of company trade again in promissaries which are flooded into divine proportions and then demonetized at will which then becomes the process of American Hegemon recently which is the transaction of capital commerce which then is commerce with commodities and even department stores all of which is a financial flow on a computer guided by the law on limits to capitalist surplus-extraction from labour and types of laboring formations including surface formations – all of this requires the law to regulate capital's spontaneous Oskar Lange system which meant a spontaneous creativity of extracting surplus-value from anything at all which should be planned by law instead.

III. Law and Capital – a comparison of Finance and Public Finance

So in fact legal notions develop public finance which then limits its proft, works slower has a lesser dynamic and is based on Central Banks or EU and World Bank type ideas which is about limiting the profitability dynamics towards ethical flows of class culture while the problem with companies is just its capitalist wanton dynamics of exchange-value which then is a measure of 400 billion at the click of buttons which is transacted virtually on all aspects of society which then is extracted as surplus value which then is transactions after transactions the state would argue without love for use-value culture which is protected by the state and legalism.
